THE OPPOSITION

West Bromwich Albion Women

West Brom secured a ninth-placed finish in the FAWNL Northern Premier Division last term, during what was boss Siobhan Hodgetts-Still's first since stepping up to the Head Coach role, and they are looking to make further progress this time around.

Transfers

It was a busy summer of securing signatures for the Baggies. Their 'newbies' arrived throughout pre-season and replaced the eight that departed at the end of 2023/24 - as the club said goodbye to Abi Loydon, Hayley Crackle, Janelle Straker & Steph Weston, who were released, alongside Lucy Newell, Lucy Jones, Delphi Cole and Jess Reavill when their dual registrations ended.

Marli Rhodes-Andrews, Ali Miller, Rubie Harris, Shan Turner and Ellie May all came in before the new year commenced, while Seren Watkins and Rhianne Oakley also made the journey over from Cardiff. Ella Haughey and Mille Pullen have since joined to further bolster the squad, too.

On the pitch

There have been high moments, as well as a few low ones, for Albion so far. Big wins over Black Country rivals Sporting Khalsa (4-0) and Stourbridge (5-0) are undoubtedly among the more enjoyable results, but heavy defeats to Wolves and Rugby Borough have been matches to forget.

Striker Simran Jhamat has been among the goals frequently, so she will be one to look out for at the top end of the field. Fellow attackers May, Rhodes-Andrews & Maz Mahmood have also netted this season, while captain Hannah George - despite being a defender - often finds herself on the scoresheet, as do versatile duo Liv Rabjohn and Ash Brown.

Finally, goalkeeper Anna Miller is likely to be standing in the way today. The American shot-stopper frequently keeps clean sheets with the help of those defending in front.
